A Review of Recent Additions to the Shelves.

CRITICISM OF NEW BOOKS

"Catherine Schuyler" by Mary Gay Humphreys—Careful Scholarship Characterizes "Periods of European History"—"Austin Elliott."

"Catherine Schuyler," by Mary Gay Humphreys, completes the series of "Women of Colonial and Revolutionary Times." This series is issued in small volumes of pleasing typographical appearance and consists of leading types of early American women, considered by authors who are both complete and readable.

One of the most important of the many series of books in course of publication to-day is that known as "Periods of European History." These books are characterized by careful scholarship and skillful arrangement, and when the series is complete it will present a more complete view of modern European history than is now obtainable in the same space. The latest volume to appear is "Europe in the Sixteenth Century," by A. H. Johnson. This volume includes the events from the time of the discovery of America nearly to the death of Elizabeth, and naturally covers a very important epoch in history. Among the most important events to be considered are the culmination of the greatness of Spain, the careers of Charles V., Francis I., William of Orange, the revolt of the Netherlands and the decline of the Italian republics.

"Austin Elliott" is one of the best stories by Henry Kingsley, who, according to our modern critics, surpasses as a novelist his more famous brother, Charles Kingsley. This volume, together with about 20 equally welcome books, were recently donated to the library by Milton Reinhardt.

William Kirby's "Annals of Niagara" is a welcome addition to our collection of books on the history of Canada by Canadian writers.

Mrs. Jennie Gould Lincoln attracted considerable attention some years ago by a very readable story, "Marjorie's Quest." Last year she published another book, which was a disappointment to those who had read her first. But she now seems to have redeemed herself in "An Unwilling Maid," certain episodes during the American revolution in the early life of Mistress Betty York, born Walcott.

The second volume of the 17th annual report of the United States geological survey contains a valuable monograph on the "Gold quartz veins of Nevada City and Grass valley districts, California," by Waldemar Lindgren. It is also issued in separate form.

When it comes to writing readable stories concerning New Mexican subjects, Charles F. Lummis easily excels all competitors. "The King of the Bronco" and other stories of New Mexico," is his latest production, and is full of local color and interest.

"Canadian Savage Folk," the native tribes of Canada," by John Maclean, is a needful contribution to the aboriginal literature of our neighbor to the north.

A new author of more than average merit is Henry Merriman, whose book "The Sowers," we noticed some months ago. A second book, "In Kedar's Tent," has just been issued, which comprises an unusual quantity of adventure, described in the engaging style of the writer.

"Mining" is the name of an ably edited monthly published in Spokane. The first two volumes, covering the year 1896, have just been bound by the library.

What ought to be the book of the year is "Hugh Wynne, Free Quaker," some time lieutenant colonel on the staff of General Washington," by S. Weir Mitchell. Dr. Mitchell is well known, both as a writer and a physician. He has written several medical works and three or four novels. His "Characteristics," published about four years ago, was conspicuous for its insight into human nature and his gift of expression. In "Hugh Wynne" he has accomplished a more ambitious task than he has before attempted. Concerning the American revolution there is but one novel written, "A Great Treason," by Mrs. March, which excels it in historical merit, and there is no other such story which equals it in the qualities that make a readable story. The book is issued in a small attractive volume, and is sure to be popular.

Charles Egbert Craddock, whose real name is Mary N. Murrell, has at last written an entertaining book for young people, "The Young Mountaineers," consists of several short stories of these mountain regions, of whose impressive summits and quaint legends Miss Murrell has been the interpreter.

"A Norwa Summer," by Laura D. Nichols is a pleasant tale of a trip to the fascinating land of the vikings. It will appeal both to those who enjoy a book of travel and to those who relish a good story.

"Costumes of the Modern Stage," published by John J. Nimmo, is a book of three more. The book is now at the center of the field again and Reliance kept gaining. Under magnificent offense Sherman carried the ball forward and around Butte's right end, and Reliance looked as though he would get away, when Benson by a brilliant tackle brought him to the ground. Arlett gained half a yard and Sheehy carried the ball around the right end and for three yards. Then Arlett bolted through the line for five yards, followed by Carter, going through center like a cyclone for six. Carter repeated his plunge through the line for another gain and Arlett started to go around the right end, but was tackled and downed by Richardson on Butte's 15-yard line, as time was called for the end of the first half at 8 minutes after 3 o'clock.

Second Half.

Arlett kicked off in the second half at 3:15, making a beautiful punt to Butte's five-yard line, when Richards carried the ball around the right end and for three yards. Then Arlett bolted through the line for five yards, followed by Carter, going through center like a cyclone for six. Carter repeated his plunge through the line for another gain and Arlett started to go around the right end, but was tackled and downed by Richardson on Butte's 15-yard line, as time was called for the end of the first half at 8 minutes after 3 o'clock.

Children's Stories in American History, by Henrietta Christian Wright, is a book that can be thoroughly commended. The children will enjoy it and their elders should see that they know of it.

For the lover of adventure it is long since a more readable story has appeared than "The Chevalier d'Aurac," by S. Levett Yeats. It is a tale of the days of King Henry the Great of France, is crammed with incident and dramatic situations, and while a fair-sized book, it is altogether too short, which is the only unfavorable criticism we have to offer.

Barbara Yechton, who scored a decided success in her first juvenile book, "We Ten," has repeated the performance in "Dorick," which is also a very readable story and highly appreciated by the young people.

After about half a century of successful literary work, Charlotte M. Yonge is still producing novels of interest and merit. "The Pilgrimage of the Hen Recluse" is a well told story of the time of the Exodus.

The following reports of states and institutions will be found useful to some of our readers:

Brooklyn, N. Y., Pratt Institute—Catalogue, 1897.

Buffalo, N. Y., City Council—Manual, including a sketch of Buffalo, 1897.

Chicago, Ill., Armour Institute of Technology—Year Book, 1897.

Columbia College, N. Y., School of Mines—Catalogue of library, 1897.

Georgia, a fair field for home seekers and investors.

Georgia Geological Survey—Publications 1894-1897, 2 volumes.

Illinois State Museum of Natural History—Bulletin, Nov. 2-12.

Iowa State Board of R. R. Commissioners—Reports, 1895-1896, 17 volumes.

London, Ont., Public Library—Class Catalogue, 1897.

Missouri Botanical Garden—Reports, 1895-1897.

Montana School Laws, June 1, 1897.

Anderson's "New Manual of General History" is an old work, but a very satisfactory one for those who desire to consult a brief treatise on the subject.

"Masks or Faces? a study in the psychology of acting," by W. Archer, is a book that will appeal to those who are interested in the theories of theatrical life.

A very readable writer for boys is R. M. Ballantyne, and while he is readable he writes nothing but what is commendable. "The Pirate City" is a tale of Algers in the days when piracy flourished and white slavery was extensively practiced.

Barnes' "Brief History of the United States," by J. D. Steele, is a work that has had much popularity as a text book, but which, while readable, is a book that for authoritative value has been eclipsed by its later competitors.

"The Pre-historic World," by Elie Beaurhet, is a book of stories for young people which are intended to depict life as it was experienced by the cave dwellers and other unfortunate of archaeological ages.

T. Bitty is the author of a "Young Folk's Illustrated novelties," "Miss Jerry," which was received with great favor. His new work, "A Capital Courtship," is of excellent typographical appearance, but does not possess the unique system of illustration which was first to attract attention in "Miss Jerry." The book is well written and will not lack readers.

Our boys and girls will be delighted with "Daring Deeds of American Heroes," with biographical sketches. This book consists of selections treating of all periods of United States history, and is just the kind of a book to start an interest in the history of our union.

SENSATIONAL SHOOTING.

A Prisoner Shoots a Policeman With Fatal Results. He Was Re-Captured.

Butte, Nov. 28.—A sensational shooting occurred here to-night, resulting in the death of Policeman James Wells and the serious wounding of Charles Phillips, Phillips, who was recently released from the New Westminster Jail, was arrested by Wells on the charge of burglary. On reaching the city Phillips drew his pistol and shot Wells through the body. He then broke away, the street was fired a second shot with fatal results at Wells, who had staggered to his feet and was in the act of taking a shot at Phillips. Phillips then broke and ran. The whole police department joined in the chase and a fusillade of shots was exchanged in the meantime. Phillips took refuge under a building. He was finally captured after he had been shot through the arm and leg.

Found True Bill.

Denver, Nov. 28.—The grand jury has found true bills against several persons in selling oleomargarine. The Colorado creamery men's association instigated the prosecution. It is claimed that eight out of every ten ice cream makers in the city handle oleomargarine.

right side of the goal line in exactly 11 minutes of play. Richards held the ball and King kicked for goal, but failed. Score, 4 to 0.

After a three-minute rest Arlett kicked off to Butte's 15-yard line. Richards made a pretty catch and advanced the ball 15 yards, dodging like a head between the Reliance rushers. In the next down play, the Reliance, but McPherson fell on it and kept it in Butte's possession. Harrington tried left end, but lost a yard. Left half kicked for 40 yards and made one of the prettiest plays of the day by following the ball and tackling Arlett, who caught it, downing him in his tracks and preventing any return. Arlett made one and a half yards' gain through the line, when a fumble gave the ball to Butte again. Harrington went around right end for four yards, left half through left tackle and guard for two more, and a moment later went around the right end for four yards. The ball was out of touch on the down and was carried in 15 yards, after which Slater took it and went through right guard and center for four yards. Left half ran the left end for three yards, when Reliance got the ball on downs and began an advance that promised to end in a touchdown.

Sheehy ran the right end for five yards. Arlett making the same circuit for two and a moment later going through left guard and tackle for three more. The ball was now at the center of the field again and Reliance kept gaining. none we may meet, and with Mr. Stivers as manager we may be expected to meet the best to be had."

Notes.

In the play over which the disagreement occurred it was Butte's ball and Butte had four yards to gain on the last down before the kick by Benson was made. The kick was blocked, Butte losing 15 yards. Reliance contended that the rule provided that under the circumstances Reliance should be given the ball, as Butte had not gained five yards in three downs, or lost 20 in the blocked kick, the Reliance claiming the ball where it was downed. Butte's contention was that if the ball was blocked by a Butte man, as the final decision of the referee indicated, it was on off-side play on Butte's part and the ball should have gone (as it did) to Reliance on the spot where the kick was made and the foul committed. If blocked by Reliance it should have gone to Butte on the spot where it was downed, as the rules construe a kick as giving a fair and equal chance to the opponents, if it go beyond the line of scrimmage or be stopped by an opponent. As he was unable to tell who blocked the ball, the referee gave Butte 15 yards and Reliance the ball. As a matter of fact, the kick was blocked by Seagrath and Butte should have had the ball on the spot where the kick was made. Reliance might profit by referring to rule 21, C. Spaulding's guide.

The Reliance boys created a good deal of fun yesterday at noon time by marching up and down Broadway with coats unbuttoned and fanning themselves with palm leaf fans.

Lawell was there again yesterday and rooted harder than any one for Butte. Manager Stivers got a telegram yesterday from the Chicago Cubs stating there had not been a quorum present at the meeting called to consider Lawell's reinstatement.

There is talk now of Butte going to California and New Year's games. The Butte boys are willing to go for their expenses, and if Reliance can make the necessary arrangements the trip will likely be made. The Reliance team will leave for home at 7 o'clock this morning. They will know that they have been in Butte.

The queerest thing on the grounds yesterday was the team that acted as the "Cotton Club" and which was the favorite of the modern and conductors of the street car line. In order to convince people that it was not cold and that they ought to go out to the game, they had fans with which they fanned the crowd as they went by. That's one of Mr. Wharton's most sinister tricks.

Captain Frick of the Reliance started yesterday for Chicago with foot ball. He will retire as soon as he gets back to San Francisco.

It was a cold day but a hot game. Matthews and Bulger, the crack corners of the "Cotton Club" were at the game. Matthews said he never struck a hotter cold game in his life.

Charley Lane is the boss rooster of the Butte team.

As a captain, Percy Benson cannot be beaten. He has a head on him that goes through the thickest of things. With Lawell, Hall and Gills playing the score would have been Butte 20, Reliance 9.

As Reliance is champion of the Pacific coast, Butte can now claim the championship of everything west of Chicago.

WILL NOT TOLERATE IT.

Germany Must Not Harbor Any Idea of Annexing the Island of Hayti.

Berlin, Nov. 28.—The state department at Washington has requested the United States Ambassador White to ascertain exactly the intentions of Germany with respect to the claims of Herr Lueders, whose recent imprisonment in Hayti has caused friction between the German and Haytian government. Mr. White has also been instructed, if there is any intention to make an excessive demonstration with a view of unduly punishing Hayti, to intimate to the German government that the United States could not tolerate either of the consequences, though in Hayti no objection to Germany obtaining satisfaction.

A Permanent Organization.

Pittsburg, Nov. 28.—Delegates representing the first and second county met in convention here to-day and formed a permanent organization with the object in view of bettering the condition of the county, and to secure a better postal service. A bill was framed looking to this end which will be submitted to congress at the coming session.
